Berlin School of Dynamic Psychiatry in Theory and Therapy

Founder Professor Dr. Guenter Ammon (1918-1995)

Dynamic Psychiatry aims to proceed towards a genuine group-dynamic understanding of illness and group related principles of life and tries to formulate a unitary understanding of illness. Accordingly its objectives are:

1. Development of an identity-structure model, and the conception of a gliding spectrum of psychic illness.
2. Elaboration and definition of the term 'social energy' and groups as a 'social energy field'.
3. Development of a holistic view of humans and recognition of their multi-dimensionality within their life realization. A holistic understanding of illness and closing down the gap between psychiatry and psychoanalysis.
4. Developing a spectrum of in and out patient therapy with single group, milieu therapy and methods of non-verbal creative therapy.
5. Prevention of illness through psychoanalytical education.
6. Creation of further organizational structures, domains for therapy, research and further education like institutes, milieu therapy, conferences/seminars, dynamic psychiatry hospitals and therapeutic living communities. The idea being that by working with each other they would be able to provide an unique treatment chain.
7. Organizing congresses and publications mainly in the journal of Dynamic Psychiatry and books by Professor Guenter Ammon and his colleagues for national and international scientific exchange of research results.

Activities of Dynamic Psychiatry's Institutions and Therapeutic Centers

The various activities of dynamic psychiatry are pursued with dedication by the Berlin School for Research and Teaching, the Institute, the Conference and Treatment Centers, Milieu Therapeutic Centers, Hospital Mengerschwaike and the Therapeutic Living Communities and are inspired by a positive attitude to life and interest in 'human beings' and 'being human' as a whole (which also includes human sufferings). For meeting its objectives the platform of Dynamic Psychiatry makes effort to:

- Provide space for individual development
- Conduct animated group dynamic and therapeutic events
- Create opportunities for interpersonal encounters and exchange, integrating reflection and discussion based on a different training and treatment concept.
