Presentation title:

The Importance of Peaceability and Identity in Times of Social Challenges

Abstract text up to 20 lines in English:

There are barely any articles in the literature of the recent years about peace ability itself. However, some authors deal with the prerequisites for peace ability which are altruism, and ethical attitudes such as guilt or forgiveness, to name a few of them. Some of the prerequisites are examined more in detail. Additionally, there are many different points of view on how peace ability and through that peace could be achieved. Further, it will be discussed how G. Ammon detached himself from the Freudian understanding of instincts and what his principle of social energy means for dynamic psychiatric psychotherapy und society itself. The philosophical aspect of the issues of identity and peaceability will be considered. Lastly, the paper reveals ideas how to prevent violence and what kind of new forms of solidarity must be developed in times of social challenges.
